The Insula Rectangular Table is Patricia Urquiola's contemporary reinterpretation of the communal tables traditionally found in Arab Majlis, spaces designed for gathering, conversation, and connection.

Defined by its sculptural presence and generous proportions, the table showcases the solidity of aluminum. Its rounded edges and solid cylindrical base give it both visual weight and a sense of calm balance. Designed as a central piece within the collection, it embodies Insula's philosophy: a meeting point between geometry and comfort, simplicity and sophistication.
